OVERVIEW

Our construction litigation team is well aware of the stakes at risk for all parties involved. Shuman McCuskey Slicer PLLC is aware of the lucrative nature of construction projects and has a committed team of experienced construction litigation attorneys to protect the interests of our clients in the construction industry. Our construction litigation attorneys represent clients in disputes involving single and multi-family dwellings, real estate developments, large commercial buildings, planned unit developments, and multi-use retail projects.

Over the years, we have honed our construction litigation practice to provide a responsible yet innovative legal analysis of complicated issues in the representation of construction managers, government and public entities, owners and developers, public utilities, contractors and subcontractors, architectural design, and engineering professionals involving various construction in these areas. Our construction litigation experience includes success in cases of construction defects and workmanship issues relating to residential and commercial construction, including roofing defects, water intrusion, and structural safety issues; indemnification issues; labor and employment issues; construction delays; mold and mildew claims; toxic exposure; environmental matters; asbestos and silica exposure; alternative dispute resolution; regulatory compliance; and construction contract disputes.

Because of our years representing businesses, contractors, construction companies, architects, and other construction-related professionals, no matter what the size or scope of your legal construction issue, our construction litigation team has the knowledge and resources to help. Shuman McCuskey Slicer PLLC is always prepared to assist our construction clients with their legal needs.
